"When ye fast be not as the hypocrites."—S. Matt. vi: 16.

Christ does not in plain words bid us fast. He takes for granted that we do. He tells us how to fast, lest we make what is good and useful worthless. He who fasts to gain man's praise, has what he seeks and nothing more. He who denies himself only in chosen ways or outward things, is of course unprofited. God blesses true fasting as a means of grace, an aid to prayer, a help to purity. It is a way of showing shame for sin, and love for HIM whom our sins slew. It holds the flesh down and strengthens the Spirit's rule over the whole man.

Holy men of old fasted. So did Christ who knew no sin. God's Book and God's Church teach the duty and guide how to make good use of the means of grace. I can not disobey and neglect without loss. Let me thankfully and earnestly use this as well as other aids for Christian life. It is vain to fast from food unless I deny myself in other ways and carefully abstain from sin. I must not fast from pride or be ashamed to fast. I must not fast for form's sake, or spare myself through fear of being formal. Doing all before "my Father which seeth in secret" as part of my strife with sin, He will strengthen me through fasting to drive back the tempter, to bring the flesh under rule and wean the heart from earth. My soul shall be set more free to rise in prayer, my will shall be braced so as with greater firmness to meet temptation. I shall have larger alms for the poor, and be able to give myself with readier heart to God.

O Lord Jesus Christ who did'st fast for my sake and hast taught me how to fast, enable me so to subdue my flesh that my spirit may be free to obey the leadings of Thy Holy Spirit who art with the Father and the same Spirit one God.—Extract from "The Daily Round," an admirable book of short meditations which can be obtained of the Rector.

When they were poor student artists, Albrecht Dürer and a friend agreed to take turns, one working while the other painted. Success came to Dürer, but the friend could no longer paint, for his hands had become twisted and stiff. Dürer painted the work-worn hands folded in prayer: they have become a symbol of sacrifice and devotion.

O world, see here suspended,
His loving arms extended,
Thy Savior on the cross!
The Prince of life is willing,
All righteousness fulfilling,
To suffer anguish, scorn, and loss.

Death for a time must hold Thee,
The grave too must enfold Thee,
Lest I should be its prey;
Death, who for me had tarried,
Death now himself lies buried,
And I shall live with Thee for aye.

Wide open are thine arms,
A fallen world to embrace;
To take to love and endless rest
Our whole forsaken race.
Lord, I am sad and poor,
But boundless is thy grace;
Give me the soul-transforming joy
For which I seek thy face.

Draw all my mind and heart
Up to thy throne on high,
And let thy sacred Cross exalt
My spirit to the sky.
To these, thy mighty hands,
My spirit I resign;
Living, I live alone to thee,
Dying, alone am thine.
